1 - How to Experience God's Wonder by Praying and Meditating

Communicating with God through prayer and meditation is vital to waking up to the wonder of God's work in your life. The more you make time to pray and meditate, the more your awareness of God's constant presence with you will grow. That can lead you to experience awe-inspiring moments anytime and anywhere you connect with God.

Praying and meditating can feel like obligations when you're busy and stressed. But once you prioritize these vital spiritual practices and start enjoying them, you'll see that they're actually opportunities to encounter wonder. Communicating with God can help you transcend even the most challenging circumstances and discover how God is at work in your life.

The process for praying and meditating is simple. Prayer is talking, while meditation is listening. When you pray, you can talk with God about whatever topic you like. When you meditate, you simply listen to God's messages to you.

Tips to Help You Pray and Meditate Well

God is always with you, available to engage in a conversation and help you notice the wonder in your life. Use these tips to help you communicate with our wonderful God.:

Develop consistent prayer and meditation practices. While you can check in with God anytime and anywhere, you'll build a closer relationship with him by setting aside a regular time and place to pray and meditate every day. Tune out distractions and focus your attention on your relationship with God. Set a daily appointment in your schedule and find a quiet and private space (such as a specific room, a quiet corner, or even a secluded outdoor area) for prayer and meditation. This can help you develop a deeper sense of awareness of God's presence with you.

Pray with freedom. Don't worry about following any type of formula when you pray. Feel free to communicate with God in whatever ways work best for you. Be open to guidance from the Holy Spirit. Absolutely any type of format can work for prayer. Simply express your thoughts and feelings honestly and naturally. You don't need to pray out loud or use formal language when you pray. God will listen to any type of prayer you express. That said, it can be helpful to remember the elements of the Lord's Prayer – the example Jesus gave us communicating with God – to promote a full conversation with God. You can begin by praising and thanking God for who he is and what he has done in your life. Bring requests to God for yourself and other people, asking him to work out what's best in each of those situations. Seek God's guidance and direction for your life. Confess your sins and ask for forgiveness, as well as help to learn from your mistakes and overcome temptation. Pray for deliverance from evil. Conclude your prayer by expressing trust and surrender to God's will. Let go of any worries and trust that God is in control.

Meditate with freedom. Feel free to meditate in whatever ways best help you focus on listening to God. You don't have to sit still or close your eyes when you meditate. If you prefer to meditate while walking, for example, that's fine. Once you've determined the most helpful ways you can pay attention to God, adapt mindfulness meditation basics to those formats. Use your breath as an anchor to keep your mind focused. Take deep, slow breaths and focus on the sensation of the air moving in and out of your body. Select a specific Bible verse or inspiring phrase (such as "I love you, God" or "Wonderful Father, speak to me") to repeat silently to yourself during meditation. Focus on the present experience without judgment or distraction. Simply observe your thoughts, emotions, and sensations without reacting to them. When your mind starts to wander, gently bring your attention back to your breath or chosen Bible verse or phrase. Don't get frustrated or discouraged when distractions arise; simply acknowledge them and let them go. Conclude your meditation with a prayer of gratitude.

2 - How to Experience God's Wonder by Managing Your Time Well

Wonderful experiences with God are waiting for you to discover them. But you can easily miss them if you're too busy, exhausted, or distracted to notice God's work around you. That's why it's important to make wonder a high priority in your schedule.

There's much more to life than your daily routines and responsibilities. Don't let the demands of your daily tasks take over your schedule because that feels like the most responsible or practical choice. You'll significantly limit your quality of life if you limit your focus only to your tasks without looking beyond them for greater meaning. Chores and errands aren't enough in themselves to inspire you. Your soul craves wonder, which you can find by living with purpose. Ultimately, it won't matter if you catch up with your laundry or clear your email inbox.

The time you invest in pursuing wonder, however, will grow your relationship with God. That has eternal value. Wonder is neither irresponsible nor impractical to pursue. Wonder may sometimes feel frivolous because it's fun, but it has a serious purpose. Wonder shows you more about God and inspires you to move closer to him. So, choose to manage your time in ways that prioritize wonder. Don't feel guilty about including wonder in your schedule whenever possible. It's well worth making time for wonder every day!

Tips to Help You Manage Your Time Well

Make more time to enjoy wonder in your life. Use these tips to help you manage your time well:

Pay attention to the present. Each moment you live is a simple yet profound gift from God. As much as possible, stop multitasking and focus on just one task at a time. Whenever you're communicating with God or other people, be fully present in the conversations.

Welcome schedule interruptions for divine appointments. Don't hesitate to interrupt your plans when you sense God surprising you with an opportunity to help someone in need. If you choose to see interruptions as opportunities rather than as inconveniences, you can start noticing all the wonder that God brings into your life unexpectedly.

Live in sync with natural rhythms. Pay attention to the natural time periods that God has set for our lives. Celebrate a weekly Sabbath day of rest and worship. Enjoy nature during the four seasons: spring, summer, fall, and winter.

Relieve stress with wonder breaks. Make time for wonder breaks – time devoted to the purpose of seeking wonder – in your schedule regularly. For example, take a wonder walk to search for something that inspires you. The transcendent moments you'll discover on wonder breaks will expand your perspective in ways that relieve stress and time pressure for you. ■

3 - How to Experience God's Wonder by Waking Up Your Senses

It's essential to bring your God-given senses to life so you can notice the wonder happening around you. You can use all your physical senses – vision, sound, smell, taste, and touch – as tools for accessing wonder that enriches you spiritually. The more you integrate the spiritual and physical aspects of your sensory experiences, the more you can discover and appreciate wonder.

If, like many people, you've become desensitized by behaviors that temporarily relieve stress but numb your senses, work to change your lifestyle. Common numbing behaviors include everything from bad habits such as constant busyness, overeating, shopping too much, and watching excessive television to addictions like pornography, alcohol, and gambling. Make a plan, with God's help, to stop doing anything that numbs you emotionally. Instead of turning to something that numbs you when you feel stressed, open your heart to God and ask for his help and peace of mind. The less you numb yourself, the more sensitive you can become to wonder.

Then look for opportunities to engage your senses every day as much as possible. As you pay attention to your physical senses, you'll find spiritual insights that lead you to wonder.

Tips to Help You Wake Up Your Senses

Wonder is waiting for you everywhere. Use these tips to help you wake up your senses.:

Wake up your sense of vision. Go to a busy public place and watch people for a while. See how much interesting information you can learn just by watching them. Visit a local park and capture your impressions of the natural scenes there. Take photos or draw what you see that inspires you. Visit an art gallery with a friend and discuss each other's observations of the artwork.

Wake up your sense of sound. Sit outside and close your eyes. Listen to sounds and make note of the different kinds – from traffic noises to bird calls. Enjoy a wide variety of music genres (rock, jazz, country, classical, etc.) rather than sticking just with your favorite type of music. As you listen, see if you can identify each of the different musical instruments in each song. Before you go to sleep, when your mind is relaxed, notice which sounds you hadn't noticed before.

Wake up your sense of smell. Enjoy a meal with family and friends. While you're eating, discuss the aromas of the food and why those aromas are appealing. Spend some time in a candle store sniffing the many different varieties of candles there. Which ones do you like the most? Which ones do you dislike? What memories do the scents trigger in your mind? Take a walk outside right after it rains, when the air is freshly clean. Pay attention to the various odors you smell and consider how those scents make you feel.

Wake up your sense of taste. Each time you buy groceries, buy a kind of food or drink you've never tasted. Whenever you discover something you like, buy more and share it with your family. Eat out at different types of ethnic restaurants. Learn about various cultures around the world by eating their cuisine. Cook some new meal recipes regularly to enjoy for breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

Wake up your sense of touch. Hold hands with someone you love for at least a few minutes (perhaps while taking a walk together). Then discuss how loving touch broke down barriers between you and gave you a fresh appreciation for each other. Enjoy some uninterrupted time petting an animal and savoring the pure unconditional love that animal gives you through a sense of touch. Spend some time walking barefoot through your home. Pay attention to the sensations you feel as you do so – from soft, bumpy carpet to cold, smooth floors.

4 - How to Experience God's Wonder by Enjoying Nature

Spending time in nature immerses you into an environment that God has created for your good. Nature reminds you that you have a wise and loving Creator who sustains all of creation – including you – in powerful ways. Every part of nature can reveal something awe-inspiring to you about God's character. That's because every part of nature displays evidence of God's work. Nature enlarges your perspective beyond the temporary concerns of your day-to-day life. Its wild beauty can resonate deep in your soul as it reminds you that a powerful Creator cares for you. Let go of attitudes that block learning. What attitudes are currently blocking you from taking advantage of the learning opportunities God brings into your life? Are you stuck in routines that limit how many new experiences you include in your schedule? Are you avoiding risks you need to take to learn, because you're afraid of what might happen if you took those risks? Are you so tired you're not putting much energy into learning what interests you? No matter what obstacles you face, you can rely on God to help you overcome them and become a lifelong learner.

Engage your curiosity by reading and engaging in conversations more. Both reading and talking with people are powerful ways to learn, and both are also habits that are easy to incorporate into your life. Reading books, articles, and more on topics that interest you can expand your mind with new knowledge. Starting conversations with the people you know can lead to all sorts of fascinating discussions – and the more you ask questions and listen, the more you can learn.

Travel more. Every trip you take can enrich your soul with wonder you couldn't experience at home. Traveling doesn't have to be expensive or time-consuming. Even simple trips to nearby places can teach you something that helps you experience God's wonder. As Saint Augustine said, "The world is a book and those who do not travel read only one page."

Pay attention to your dreams. Through dreams, you can access wonder through learning even while you're asleep. Dreaming helps you connect with God's wonder beyond the time and space boundaries you live in when you're awake. When you're dreaming, any distractions that may have blocked you from noticing wonder during the day clear out of your mind, and your subconscious thoughts and feelings surface. You can then be fully receptive to whatever messages God sends you through your dreams. The Holy Spirit is always at work renewing your mind through your dreams. 7 - How to Experience God's Wonder by Exploring Mysteries

Mysteries can lead you to God's wonder if you allow them to expand your perspective. You may be both attracted to mysteries and repelled by them. It can be intriguing to encounter mysteries you don't understand and want to learn more about, yet it can also be scary or threatening to deal with the unknown. People sometimes ignore mysteries rather than risk the mess of having them challenge their worldviews. However, if you approach mysteries with courage, they can point you toward God's wonder. Mysteries call you to step out of your comfort zone and dance with your doubts and faith toward what may be something wonderful!

Tips to Help You Discover Wonder by Exploring Mysteries

You can welcome wonder into your life by opening your mind to mysteries. Use these tips to help you explore mysteries and discover wonder in the process:

Go beyond limits. Be willing to explore beyond the limits of what you know, what you understand, and what you think is possible. Let mysteries challenge you to expand your worldview, opening doors for you to discover something new and awe-inspiring about God.

Explore public mysteries. Let public mysteries – such as UFO sightings, reports of miracles, and crop circles – spark your curiosity to learn more about them. Don't hesitate to discuss mysteries with others. Learn from each other's perspectives as you all consider something mysterious that goes beyond your individual opinions. Pray about mysteries in the news, asking God to show you what he wants you to learn from them that can strengthen your faith.

Explore personal mysteries. God may sometimes send mysterious signs and wonders into your life to encourage you and strengthen your faith. For example, God may answer your prayer about something by sending you a message in a dream about it. You can interpret that dream message to discover its meaning with the Holy Spirit's help. Whenever you experience a personal mystery that seems to be from God, don't be afraid to prayerfully explore it.

Investigate mysteries wisely. Keep your mind open when you're investigating mysteries, but also follow the Holy Spirit's guidance to respond with wisdom. Guard yourself against deception by evaluating the mysteries you encounter according to the advice in 1 John 4:1-3: "Dear friends, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God, because many false prophets have gone out into the world. This is how you can recognize the Spirit of God: Every spirit that acknowledges that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from God, but every spirit that does not acknowledge Jesus is not from God..."

Let mysteries from God strengthen your faith in him. The faith you express in response to mysteries will help you build a closer relationship with God, which will help you perceive more of the wonder of his work.

Tips to Help You Discover Wonder by Enjoying Worship

Worship connects you with God, who is the source of all wonder. Use these tips to help you experience God's wonder as you worship:

Focus on God's presence. Seek to become more aware of God's presence with you while you worship. Get rid of any other motives for worshiping (such as stress relief, entertainment, trying to convince God to give you what you want, or trying to impress others who are watching you). Approach God with pure motives, a clear mind, and an open heart.

Worship in spirit and truth. Engage your emotions in loving communication with God while focusing your thoughts on the truth about who God is. Don't worry about the style of the worship service. Instead, aim to simply encounter God and respond to his love.

Express gratitude. God is constantly pouring blessings into your life – even during challenging circumstances. When you express gratitude for those blessings, you open doors for wonder to flow into your life. The Latin word “gratus” is the root of both the words “gratitude” and “grace” in English. You become full of grace when you choose to be grateful. In a state of gratitude, you can perceive the wonder of God's work around you. What are you especially grateful for right now? Mention those specific blessings in prayer. Consider creating some rituals to celebrate evidence of God's wondrous work in your life every day, such as writing a daily list of what you're thankful for in a gratitude journal or discussing daily blessings with your family members at dinner together.

Give God praise. When you worship God through praise, God meets with you, and you feel awe from the wonder of noticing his presence. Psalm 22:3 declares that God inhabits the praises of his people. So, praise is a powerful way to welcome God and experience his wonder. God is worthy of your praise in any circumstances, because he is always there for you, offering love and wisdom.

Worship together in community. It's important to worship together with other believers, because God has designed us all to be connected to him and each other in bonds of love. Revelation 7:9 mentions worship in heaven includes "a great multitude no one could count, from every nation, tribe, people and language." When you worship in community here on earth, you're preparing your soul to worship one day with the great multitude of believers standing before God's heavenly throne.
